The article detail page has been improved:

The given space is now used more efficiently. Information will now be displayed way better. The image window has been made smaller.

Clicking on an image now displays a pop-up with an enlarged view, making it much more comfortable to view the images.

- The main article information area and the block with the extended article information below is now displayed in two columns.
- When scrolling, only the middle part moves.
- Images are now always displayed square.
- Depending on the supplier, an individually designable HTML area for item information can be displayed in addition to or instead of the extended item information, in which marketing texts, technological information, icons or downloads can be offered.

The individual areas such as "Properties/Technologies" can be expanded and collapsed.

• There are now also more design options for the block of extended article attributes: List fields can be defined that appear with bullet points instead of labels.

- Each user can activate this functionality himself if required. To do this, open your profile settings and click on "Multiple shopping baskets per workbook":
- If you now open a catalogue or an assortment, then you can create additional shopping baskets for the same branch and the same assortment/workbook via the context menu:

• Alternatively, just like the "Branches" tab, you can also select the active shopping cart by using the context menu and then enter the quantities for this shopping cart only:

 For suppliers who have defined a set of rules for their workbooks at the workbook level (catalogue or assortment), there is a special feature to take car of: If you have created several shopping baskets, the rules must be observed across all your shopping baskets. For this reason, when you close a shopping basket that belongs to such a set of rules, all other shopping baskets of the same branch and the same workbook are automatically selected and finalized together.

In this case, the rules check is also displayed across the board.

3. New features

• Export Workbook with article detail pages If you have opened a workbook, you can trigger an export of the article details via the context menu at the workbook title in future:

• Scanning function in Q24:

In the future you will be able to scan articles using a scanner connected to your computer via USB cable or Bluetooth. Therefore it is mandatory that you have corresponding barcodes that encode either the EAN code or the item number. Furthermore, your scanner must be configured in such a way that it sends a dot ('.') as a prefix for the number and a "Return" as a termination. You can test the correct configuration by opening a text document (e.g. Word) and scanning the barcode. An insert must then be made in the document that looks something like this: .1234567Scanfunktion in Q24:

4. Furthermore: Improvements/Bugfixes

• Q24-App:

- Various small improvements regarding the layout and operation
- Live scan via Q24 APP Synchronisation shopping cart If you are already using the Q24 app, you can now also use it as a scanner for your notebook. All you have to do is log in to Quintet24 with your account both in the app and on your notebook. Afterwards, the articles scanned with the mobile phone will be called up directly on your notebook.
- Order completion: automatic creation of PDF and CSV and permanent storage/linking
 - So far, all exports were always created in the background at runtime. When master data was subsequently changed, this always led to inconsistencies and missing information or images.
 - In future, a PDF, an Excel file and a CSV file will automatically be exported and permanently saved when a shopping basket is closed. If the export is repeated later for one of these files, the saved original will be used. This ensures that the export always delivers exactly the same result as at the time of release.
